

1. Location: The episode features sailing into Auckland, New Zealand, the captain Colin's hometown, with a convoy of boats.
2. Sailing Condition: The engine issue with the injector pump led to the boat revving at full RPM out of control until fixed.
3. Problems & Fixes: The injector pump was mangled, causing the engine to run out of control. It was repaired by diesel maintenance with used parts.
4. Anchorages & Marinas: The boat docked in Auckland for a homecoming celebration, with a special berth that required both engines.
5. Safety Measures: Precautions were taken during the pump repair to ensure no damage to the timing and careful priming of fuel lines.
6. Rules: The repair needed to be done promptly to make it in time for the homecoming event in Auckland.
7. Community Support: The emotional welcome in Auckland included a traditional Maori welcome and a crowd of 500 people, showing immense support.
8. Education: The crew engaged low-income children from Auckland schools in a sailing experience to inspire them and give them an opportunity they wouldn't normally have.
9. Weather: The weather on the day of the homecoming had over 20 knots of wind, making the sailing challenging but exciting.

10. Routes & Navigation: The sailing route from Gulf Harbor to Oakland was a 3-hour journey with a flotilla of boats following.

11. Cultural Experience: The crew had a unique experience being welcomed by the Maori community in Auckland, showcasing the local culture.

12. Human Interest: The emotional connection of the captain sailing back to his hometown and the heartwarming interaction with the school children on board.

13. Further Events: A teaser for the next episode where the captain visits the British Virgin Islands for an emotional trip back to where he bought the boat six years ago after Hurricane Irma.